Situation et terroir

In the heart of the Côte Chalonnaise (12 kilometres from Chalon-sur-Saône), Mercurey is one of Burgundy's most important wine appellations. The vines are at an altitude of between 230 and 320 metres. They are planted on the marl and marl-limestone soils of the Oxfordian. To the east, limestone and marl. To the west, a Jurassic structure and a crystalline base covered with sandstone. Accord Mets et Vin

This wine goes perfectly with grilled red meat or meat in sauce, such as fillet of beef with morel mushrooms, roast duck breast or stuffed guinea fowl. It also goes very well with mature Burgundy cheeses such as Époisses or Brillat-Savarin. On the
